Retirement living with IRT

What is a retirement village?

A retirement village is a community of likeminded people over the age of 55. You live independently in your own home and enjoy the benefits of community living.

Entertain family and friends in your villa or the many community social spaces, join in community events and activities, and have your home maintenance taken care of while you travel.

As your needs change you can use public transport to travel to nearby shops, home care services to help with the housework or allied health services to take care of your personal health. You'll feel safe and supported with your Retirement Village Manager and neighbours close by.

At IRT, we want our retirement village to be your home for life.

Henry Brooks Estate at IRT Kanahooka is currently under construction and stages three and four are due for completion by mid-2022. Some design and construction elements are still to be finalised and therefore may be subject to change.

The information, illustrations, documents and plans in this brochure will not form part of any residence contract.

Why choose Henry Brooks Estate?

About our community

Life's good at Henry Brooks Estate at IRT Kanahooka.

We're creating a community where getting the most out of each day is as easy as getting up in the morning.

You'll share your home with local birdlife, beautiful scenery and friendly neighbours, and where the day takes you is up to you.

A stroll through the local surroundings? Too easy. A BBQ with some of your new friends in a communal area? Meet at The Clubhouse. And if you just want to take time for yourself with a cup of coffee or a cold drink, nobody's going to stop you.

After all, this is a place where you can do as much - or as little - as you want. Where you're surrounded by great company in your own little slice of the Illawarra. Where happiness is an everyday thing, and you have the opportunity to try something new every day.
